Condominio Monti →

Condominio Monti is made up of two buildings in Monti, one of Rome's most central neighborhoods. The exterior is unassuming—there's even a faded old hotel sign hanging from the building windows—but walk through air-conditioned entrance and things start to get interesting. Local Roman design firm, Studio Tamat, overhauled the two buildings a few years back, keeping the layout of a traditional Roman guesthouse, with all of the rooms arranged along a corridor. They've also livened up the lobby with soft green and gold wall paints, marble tables and soft armchairs. There are cute design touches, like the shelf of hand drawn postcards and maps of the local neighborhood.
